Choosing a garage door you won't regret

A garage door often dominates a home's street-facing façade, and it's a purchase most people make once every couple of decades. The difference between a confident choice and a regretted one usually comes down to the selection process: seeing the door on your home before committing, getting the measurements right, and dealing with an accountable installer. B&D;'s selection process is built around exactly those three steps.

Step 1: Preview the door on your own home

B&D;'s Garage Door Visualiser lets you preview how a new door will enhance your home's exterior before you spend anything. Upload or capture a photo of your home, then try door styles and colours in place. The tool is smartphone-compatible, so you can do it from your driveway.

This solves the most common selection anxiety — appearance — with evidence rather than imagination. Pair it with B&D;'s "help me choose" guidance, which walks through the practical decision between roller doors and sectional doors for your space, headroom and usage.

Step 2: The free professional measure and quote

Every B&D; garage door is made to measure. That's why a qualified professional conducts a measure and quote prior to installation — it isn't an optional extra, it's how the system is designed to work. The measure and quote is free, and it's the step where practical constraints (headroom, side room, opening shape, motor placement) get resolved by someone who handles them daily, before they can become installation-day surprises.

You can arrange it two ways:

- Request a free quote directly through B&D;
- Contact an accredited dealer near you via the [\[dealer directory\]](#)(/dealers)

For guidance before booking, free phone consultations are available on 13 62 63.

Step 3: Choose your installer with evidence

B&D; products are sold and installed through an Australia-wide network of B&D; Accredited Dealers, many of which operate local showrooms where you can see and operate doors in person.

This directory profiles 97 dealer locations across every Australian state and territory — and their service quality is publicly measurable. Analysis of 420+ verified Google reviews across the 68 dealers with review histories shows an average rating of 4.54 out of 5 stars, with 87% of reviews being 5-star. Before you book, you can check your local dealer's actual track record in the [\[customer reviews analysis\]](#)(/customer-reviews/b-d-customer-reviews-what-australians-say-about-their-garage-doors), including the top-rated dealers by state.

Reviewers consistently single out the consultation experience — thorough measurement visits, installers who explain the door's operation on handover, and responsive after-sales support.

Why this process matters

Skipping steps in garage door selection produces predictable failures: a door that clashes with the house, measurements that don't account for limited headroom, or an installer with no accountability when something needs adjusting. B&D;'s process — visualise first, professional measure second, accredited installation third — is designed so each risk is eliminated in order, and each step is free until you decide to buy.
